AUN-HPN is one of the thematic networks of the ASEAN University Network which aims to promote the member universities to be the leaders in promoting health for the society. AUN-HPN was established in 2014 with Mahidol University acting as its secretariat of the network since then. By 2021, there have been 30 core members and 8 Associate members of universities from within and outside ASEAN region.

In 2017, AUN-HPN developed Healthy University Framework (HUF) as an initiative tool for ASEAN universities to translate their whole university approach to health promotion to be in practice by assessment, monitoring, and evaluation of a healthy university following this tool's instruction. This report presents about Healthy University Rating System (HURS), the recent innovative product of AUN-HPN, which is an online self-assessment tool transformed from HUF to be adopted by universities in monitoring their implementation of healthy university's progress towards health, well-being and sustainability.
